

January 30, 2008

The American Council On Renewable Energy (ACORE) works to bring all forms of renewable energy into the mainstream of America's economy and lifestyle. Our organization, along with the U.S. Government will host the Washington International Renewable Energy Conference (WIREC 2008) at the Washington, DC Convention Center on March 4-6, 2008.

We needed to find a reputable telemarketing firm in a short period of time to thoroughly understand our needs, setup the project and make over 10,000 calls to business contacts in various fields in order to generate attendance at the event.

Results Telemarketing worked on a daily basis with our team in order to import and manage all of our data into their software and even created customized call result codes so that we could send out emails based upon the result of the conversation.

I was impressed with their daily reports and all of the time that they spent with us during every step of the project.

Results Telemarketing greatly contributed to the success of our event and I would highly recommend their services.